BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., FRIDAY, JULY 22, 1932.

FIFTY-FIRST YEAR, No. 30.

SECRETARY BAY C. OF C. IS GUEST SPEAKER TO BUSINESS MEN LUNCHEON

Mrs. M. Juden Reviews Work of Local Association of Chamber of Commerce—Urges Membership and Co-Operation—Tells of Objectives and of Hard-surfacing of U. S. 90.

As guest speaker, Mrs. M. Juden, efficient and wide-awake secretary Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, addressed a gathering of business men of the community Wednesday noon on the occasion of the weekly luncheon-meeting Bay St. Louis Rotary, at which time and place the speaker took occasion to view some of the work of the organization. Notably, the work by the highway department of the O. S. T. through Hancock county into and through Bay St. Louis. The Chamber of Commerce, through the initiative of Henry W. Osinich, said the speaker, was also responsible for the first planting of strawberries in Hancock county on an appreciable scale.

Mrs. Juden's address was interesting and well worthy and proved informative as well as inspirational for further united effort.

Among other things, Mrs. Juden said, in part:

"As you are familiar with the Chamber of Commerce work I do not intend to bore you with details, but if I may have your indulgence for a few minutes I would like to give a short resume of the accomplishments and objectives of the last few months. Before doing so, however, I would like to stress the point of membership which, as you know, is most essential to any organization. I understand that in these times of depression every one has a place for his dollar, and many feel that a $10.00 membership to the C. of C. is like throwing money away, yet these same people who take this attitude are generally the ones, who if desirous of any help, come straight to the Chamber of Commerce. What we are trying to do is to secure cooperation, to secure community effectiveness with the minimum of envy and discord.

The biggest business is bound for failure if its members do not co-operate. Many of you gentlemen have been more than faithful in your duty to make our association a success, and we feel we have made it such and you should be thanked for your efforts, but you and I both know it is cooperation we need and without it is impossible to do the things singlehanded. There is today even a greater need than ever for this cooperative spirit and it is through organization that this can best be brought about. By giving the best within us the Chamber of Commerce movement ought to prove a big impetus to the growth of the City of Bay St. Louis in every phase of its life. Community progress is synonymous with community effort. There is bound to be growth where there is action. People are attracted to a community that is alive.

"In the past eight months we have had many objectives, one in particular of which we are very proud to state is nearing completion—the hard-surfacing of the remaining 18 miles on U. S. 90. This has been rather long drawn out, owing to lack of funds. Mr. Thames has lived up to his promise, the last strip of road is being graded and this week they begin black topping. We feel by the end of August this road will be completed, giving our New Orleans friends no further room to kick about the Mississippi dust and gravel.

"Our association has had for the past year an employment register in which parties may place their names for work and some small jobs have been located.

"We were instrumental in interesting the farmers' into planting 500 acres of strawberries and owe thanks to Mr. Henry Osinich for his undivided attention in this matter. We understand many made a success of same, and will replant this year, but many were handicapped by weather conditions.

"Through the cooperation of Mayor Traub and our City officials two collections of garbage are made in the business section weekly.

"Through the efforts of the Red Cross and C. of C. 500 families received flour, due thanks being given to Mr. Geo. E. Rea, for his untiring efforts and work; also to Mr. C. C. McDonald for his aid in handling the flour in his warehouse and allowing the distribution from said place; to Miss Louise Armstrong, Mrs. Claude Monti and other ladies giving their time to checking names and to distributing same. Another car load will be here in about 60 days.

"The lighting of the Bay bridge, gas and municipal pier, three projects we hope within the near future to have for Bay St. Louis.

"The routing of cars up Main street to the beach so that money might be spent in our stores has been completed, signs being placed at Main, Ulman and Front streets directing traffic through toward the business district.

"We are always ready to help in any way, any time we can, in anything that is for the benefit of our community and feel that it is every member's duty to ask us to work with them. Our office can be used by its members for meetings for civic purposes; we are always open to suggestions and will do all we can to carry them out.

"It ain't the guns, nor armament, nor funds that they can pay, But the close cooperation that makes them with the day."

Prominent New Orleans Physician and Bay Summer Resident Succumbs To Long Illness.

Dr. Paul J. The funeral took place Thursday morning from the church of the Immaculate Conception, Baronne street, interment at Metairie Cemetery. The pall bearers were his six sons, John Robley, Albert, Clarence, Sidney and Paul J. Gelpi, Jr., and his nephews, John G. Robin and Andre Lajeyre.

In addition to his six sons Dr. Gelpi is survived by his widow, who was formerly Miss Annette Hinks, and three daughters, Misses Marie, Paola and Corinne Gelpi.

St. Claire Church Card Party Nets Sum Of Fifty Dollars

Mrs. Edw. C. Carrere, chairlady, reports the handsome sum of fifty dollars as the result of a benefit card party given at her Waveland beach residence last Thursday afternoon benefit of St. Claire's church.

There were many guests from Bay St. Louis and the summer colony was well represented. Delectable refreshments were served throughout the afternoon and a handsome prize for each and every table marked the liberality of management. This party was one of a series of monthly card parties for the one benefit.

EDGEWATER HOTEL IN FORECLOSURE SUIT BY CHICAGO BANK

Most Pretentious Hotel on Mississippi Gulf Coast Involved in Court Proceedings.

A suit for the foreclosure of a bond mortgage on the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, largest and most pretentious hostelry on the Mississippi Coast, was filed in chancery court at Gulfport Tuesday by the First Union Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago and Rufus F. Chapin of Chicago trustee. Seeking a sale by court order of the hotel and its furnishings together with a large amount of acreage in connection therewith, some of which fronts along the Mississippi Sound, the complainants ask for a deficiency judgment in case the property fails to bring the full amount of the alleged indebtedness of $957,608.

The foreclosures suit is predicated upon a $1,000,000 issuance of first mortgage bonds by the Edgewater Company in August, 1926. The payment on the principal and interest of these bonds was declared to have defaulted in September, 1931.

The Gulf and Ship Island Railroad Company and the Chicago Title and Trust Company are made parties defendant in the suit on grounds that they are holders of junior mortgages on the property and should be brought in to give them opportunity to protect their interest in the property.

Prominent Coast Educator Visits Bay St. Louis Wednesday

Dr. Richard M. Cox, president Gulf Park College, and past district governor Rotary International, was a visitor to Bay St. Louis Wednesday and attended the local Rotary luncheon-meeting at the Oriole.

Recently returned from an extensive auto trip to Michigan and through the west center of the country, attending a number of alumni reunions, and also a visitor to the Democratic convention at Chicago, Dr. Cox was an interesting speaker at the meeting and gave sidelights of the convention. He also told of his visit to the cherry centers of Michigan where wayside stands, attended by daintily-clad young ladies, dispense of cherry pies, that seemingly being the staple product of that section.

Dr. Cox is an enthusiastic Rotarian and his presence added to the zest and interest of the Bay meet.

Al. Strieman and His Orchestra Scores at Uncle Charley's Club

Uncle Charlie's Night Club, Bay St. Louis, rendezvous for the elite of this section and Coast, was the scene of another delightful occasion Wednesday night when Al. Strieman and his orchestra, direct from the West End Roof and Roosevelt Hotel, New Orleans, scored an unqualified success.

The crowd danced to the strains of the musicians discoursing music in its various interpretations and interpolations of novel numbers with chorus. Al Strieman's orchestra is composed of not only a band of musicians but men who are versatile in their art.

Both the management of Uncle Charlie's Night Club and Al Strieman are to be complimented on the occasion of Wednesday night and a return of the Strieman aggregation is anticipated.

BAY C. OF C. ASKS FOR REMEDY

By Writing Letter to Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce Calling Attention to Danger at Henderson Point.

On learning of another death by drowning at Henderson Point last Sunday in the deep hole left there Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, ever on the alert and always looking for the best interests and to conserve property and lives, at once became busy in the premises and the following letter was dispatched to the Chamber of Commerce at Pass Christian, with a view that the attention of the proper authorities would be called and immediate remedy forthcoming.

The letter which the local secretary sent follows in full: "Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce, "Pass Christian, Mississippi, "Gentlemen:

"May we ask your cooperation in regard to a matter which has been called to our attention, and is of vital importance to us. Many of our home folks and visitors enjoy the bathing at Henderson Point, and frequent those beaches daily. We read in the morning paper of another death by drowning, the fourth this summer.

"The excuse given was that a small sign 'Deep Water' removed by some bathers July 4th, had not been replaced. The sign, being small, was not sufficient warning to the pleasure seeker, and this particular hole has been a menace for some time.

"May we suggest that this spot be wired or fenced in, or a large permanent sign be placed to secure safety to the many bathers frequenting these beaches, and possibly being the means of saving many lives.

"We would hate to see the Beach lose its popularity by leaving memories in the minds of those whose loved ones' lives were snuffed out so quickly, when it will take so little to remedy this condition.

"We will thank you to take this matter up with the proper authorities, and feel that you will do all in your power to relieve the situation."

Auto License 1933 To Be Of White And Green Color

Jackson, Miss., July 18.—State Auditor Joe S. Price late today announced that bids for 1933 Mississippi auto tags will be received by the State Tag Commission August 5.

It was also learned that the colors used on next year's tags will be those of Delta State Teacher's college at Cleveland—white letters on a green background. The colors are rotated each year, using combinations of the state colleges.

ELECT OFFICER.

At a meeting of the Altar Society of St. Claire's Church, Waveland, held Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Phil Kammer was elected vice-president to fill vacancy. The society is headed by Mrs. Edw. C. Carrere as president and is ever active, one of the factors that goes to make the success of the church in our sister city.

N. O. YOUTH VICTIM OF DEEP WATER HOLE OFF HENDERSON PT. SUNDAY

Austin Moore, Aged 24, Drowns While Bathing With Party of Fifteen Companions From New Orleans Spending Day Near By Scene of Tragedy.

A member of a party of fifteen excursionists out from New Orleans for the day, at Henderson Point, Austin Moore, aged 24 years, met his death Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock while the party was out bathing near the point and directly south of the Bay auto bridge.

Moore was seen to go down at a point where the water is deep, over twenty feet and failing to rise the alarm was given at once and every attention possible was directed to the spot and youth with an effort of affecting his rescue.

None would venture for the place is too well known by those familiar with the waters there, until Russell Manieri, who was nearby came to the scene and was soon under the water and down into the depth of the hole, finally emerging with the body in his grip.

It was estimated the body had been under water fully twenty minutes and little or no hope was entertained save that spark of hope which springs eternally in the human breast.

The victim's companions were naturally frantic and the fact the youth was dead could not be accepted, for it was only a few minutes previously that the party was in the midst of a bright and happy holiday.

Russell Manieri's Statement.

"I was visiting at Henderson Point," said Russell Manieri, "talking to former Lt.-Gov. Bidwell Adam and Mr. W. J. Lizana, both friends of mine, at Lizana Bathing Place, when sounds of a commotion over in the direction of the terminal of the auto bridge attracted my attention. Observing that a crowd had congregated I hastily retreated and made for the scene. Reaching there a young woman was calling frantically for assistance. I quickly learned that a man who had been bathing had gone beyond his depth and was beneath the water and failed to rise.

"Divesting myself of my top clothing I at once plunged into the space pointed out where the body had sunk. I felt that I was diving into a deep place, which later was estimated at over twenty feet. The bottom was filled with a substance that felt like weeds and was somewhat puzzling. Feeling around for the body my grasp came into contact with the man's bathing suit. Here I tightened my hold and proceeded to rise. I did not startle to rise with the body, I am satisfied that with ordinary high tide that hole is some thirty feet deep and is a most dangerous menace to life."

Body Brought Ashore

With the body ashore every aid possible was given. Dr. A. P. Smith who was summoned answered the call promptly. Dr. C. M. Shipp, county health officer was also present and assisted. The pulmotor, which is owned by the people of Bay St. Louis and directed under auspices of Chamber of Commerce, was brought into use after the young man's lungs had been cleared of water, but to no avail. His face was black and it was evident the spark of life had fled. Rev. Father Leo F. Fahey had been summoned and promptly replied to the call, administering the last attentions of the church and faith to the young man who was a member of the Catholic religion.

The body, after all efforts at resuscitation had failed, was placed on a truck and taken over to Bay St. Louis where it was given to the care of Fahey Burial Company and prepared for burial. It was placed in the Funeral Home, given the tenderest and most solicitous attention and on Monday morning taken to New Orleans by train, the funeral taking place the same afternoon, with funeral services from Mater Dolorosa church, Carrollton avenue, with interment at Metairie cemetery.

Joseph Austin Moore, Jr.

Austin Moore was well and popularly known in New Orleans. From good family, he was well connected and generally known. He was a clerk for the Jahneke Service, Inc., for the past four years, it was said. He was a native of Chrievier, Terrebonne parish, La., where his father, the late Joseph Austin Moore, and his grandfather, Captain John T. Moore, for many years had been prominent and successful sugar planters. He came to New Orleans about 14 years ago and at once took his position in life.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Leah Knoblock Gondolf; two brothers, Gustave and Thomas Moore; a half sister, Shirley Gondolf, and a half brother, Jack Gondolf.

Dangerous Place

Where Moore lost his life is marked with four stakes the danger place diamond shaped. The four stakes are plainly seen above the water, but mean nothing to the stranger. A sign marked "Danger" was fastened to one of these stakes but during the fourth of July week end a number of bathers in thoughtless sport detached and tossed it away. The public is asking that this danger signal or something even more effective be placed. It seems that it is up to the Harrison county officials.

HANCOCK COUNTY WELL REPRESENTED AT STATE LEGION MEET AT BILOXI

Clement R. Bontemps Post and Auxiliary Take Conspicuous Part in Legion State Meet—L. W. Bradon Elected New Head—Honors for Local Post Auxiliary.

Bay St. Louis and Hancock county was well represented in Biloxi this week in the Legion State Convention, held at Biloxi, three days when Clement R. Bontemps Post and Ladies' Auxiliary were officially present.

With all the pomp and splendor of war day marches, the American Legion with some 700 delegates registered, came, saw and conquered. It was the greatest assembly yet, in point of spirit and enthusiasm. The parade Monday afternoon was elaborate, reviewed by Governor Sennett Conner, Adjutant-General Thomas J. Grayson and other state and prominent legion officials.

Captain S. P. Edmonds, retired coast guard commander, was grand marshal and assisted by aides from each of the coast towns. Besides veterans of the World War, Confederate veterans, Spanish War veterans, auxiliary members of the national guard and coast guard units were in the line of march.

The Biloxi boys band, Jackson, Greenwood, Greenville and Gulfport legion drum and bugle corps; Bay St. Louis band and Knights of Columbus drum and bugle corps, furnished music for the long procession, which was participated in by practically all posts of Mississippi representing the legion's membership of nearly 9,000 and its 102 posts.

Monday afternoon was featured by the dedication of a sun dial memorial at the community house. Forrest Cooper, past state commander and national vice commander and Luther Maples, present commander, were the speakers with George Dittto, Biloxi, presiding. At night a distinguished guests' banquet was held in honor of the visiting officials.

Among the resolutions presented to the convention were those asking for immediate full bonus payment; formation of a Sons of World War Veterans organization; reduction from 90 to 60 days of war service required to allow pensions and disability payments and state retraining plans.

Hancock County Post

Hancock county's Clement R. Bontemps' Post received a check of $25.00 as recognition for membership and also citations for meritorious accomplishment and community service. The check was given Com-

ADVERTISING WORTH MORE THAN DIVIDENDS.

IS this the time to advertise? The Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company seems to think so, because its directors recently voted to cut the dividend rate of the stock sixty per cent rather than curtail its advertising program.

Are the leaders of this large corporation merely trying to sustain the magazines and newspapers during a period of economic stress? Have they been fooled by misleading propaganda into the belief that advertising helps modern business? What can be behind such a decision?

Here's the answer, supplied by the company itself: Having long occupied a leading position in the toilet soap, laundry soap and toilet article business by the expenditure of large sums for advertising, the management is anxious to hold its products up to the public confident that, when business picks up, it will continue to buy goods of established reputation, with which it is familiar.

Therefore, the company contemplates continuing its advertising campaigns on a basis that keeps the reputation of its brands in the minds of the consuming public as the "greatest ultimate service it can render to its stockholders."

Bright-minded men, if any, who do not believe in advertising, might study this statement and see what's the matter with it. Referring it to the attention of Bay St. Louis business men, may we not point out that advertising is not anything magical, giving different returns to different sections. What is a good business program for the large soap company is a good business idea for the smaller concerns.

SAFEGUARDING HUMAN LIFE.

TRAGEDY of last Sunday should cause the authorities or those upon whom it devolves to take action and avoid such occurrence again. The "deep hole" east of the terminus of the Bay auto bridge is the result of dredging operations during the "building" of Pass Christian Isles project and has claimed one life after another.

Only a comparative short while since a Bay St. Louis citizen and young son lost their lives in these waters and other similar untimely deaths resulted.

Bay St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has appealed to the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce, calling attention to the danger and seeking that proper safeguard be placed at once.

Incidentally, The Sea Coast Echo wishes to voice its protest against the auto bridge at Pass Christian Isles, a connecting link of the O. S. T. This bridge was recently revamped, but is still a death trap. Narrow, with frail guard rail and perched up on a steep incline precluding the view of one car driver from that of the other coming from opposite direction. We understand, of course, a new bridge is to be built, but the fact remains that the one in use, over which hundreds of thousands of cars pass, is still in use and is dangerous in the extreme.

Why these death-dealing traps passes understanding. Let it be remembered that nothing is more precious than a human life.

WAVELAND AND PUBLIC PIER.

WAVELAND, too, is feeling the need of a public pier, and a sentiment is crystalizing for the realization of this hope.

Like every other golf coast resort center, where people come and go, to enjoy the pleasures of tide water, such recreational piers have become a necessity. It is best that these be owned municipally and given free use to the public. First for the reason that privately owned enterprise would necessarily be taxed and payment for use would limit the enjoyment.

Waveland has made remarkable strides during the depression period, possibly more than any other section, comparatively, of the coast. The people there are alert to the advantage of their location and advantages and thousands of visitors are attracted every summer. Waveland, in time, since it is so close to other points, will become a winter resort as well as the ideal summer resort for which it is known.

WHO IS OLDEST?

WHO is the oldest person now living in Bay St. Louis?

Figures given out by the Census Bureau show that there are 3,964 persons in the United States claiming to be 100 years or over, but it is admitted that sometimes persons of advanced age, not knowing their true ages, make exaggerated guesses and that this number is probably in excess of the centenarians actually alive.

The Echo would be glad to receive from every section of Hancock county reports giving the names of any centenarians.

While a number of the big daily newspapers are reduced in size and many weekly newspapers discontinued while other "weeklies" or "weeklings," to be more grammatical, are on their last legs, a number have reduced their size to negligible proportions. Perhaps one of the best weekly Louisiana newspapers is the Slidell Sun. It has reduced its size to that of about a postage stamp. However, like the stamp, may it be able to stick and carry, although not licked.

It is one of the phenomena of modern business that your friends come in to see you on your birthday.

A COUPLE GOES TRAVELING.

A COUPLE left Bay St. Louis a few days since for a pleasure trip out to the Pacific coast with California as their objective point. Since it is a pleasure trip they planned it well.

First, they said, we must not hurry. Time for a pleasure and educational trip is essential. Both are well read and have traveled. Hence they are prepared to view and to appreciate things.

They will make the long trip by bus route, a de luxe travel system and with the privilege of stopping anywhere and at any time along the route.

They will visit the land of Evangeline where the bayous are more picturesque and the oaks are draped heaviest with Louisiana moss. Then they will tarry a while in Houston, where the South pulsates and breathes in fullest activity, thence they will linger in San Antonio, the land of romance and history. It will be hard to leave here, but they must not tarry too long, for the trip to California has only fairly begun. On through the maze of tall mountains and desert spots here and there they will journey, stopping at mountain towns to reach at a later time the city of El Paso. From here they will possibly cross the Rio Grande, going over the international bridge by street car, show their passport and see a bull fight in Juarez, visit the old cathedral and perhaps quaff a few draughts of beer made down in Monterey. It will be an experience in this land of foreign flavor where few, if any, speak English, and—right over the border.

Then they will bid Texas good-bye and crossing over the Rio Grande again they will soon be on the terra firma in New Mexico. A few days later in Arizona. Here they will linger longer at Yuma, where the dates ripen, the only place in America to do this. The temperature during mid-day is 120, but dry; and refreshingly cool at night. Yes, blanket will be necessary for the night's rest. Then the deserts that fascinate. The tall cacti plants and on through until they reach Indio, the first place of renewed signs of civilization, yet still in the desert edge, but at last California.

Then, dear reader, you must some day take the trip to California and see the balance for yourself. It is worth it. See it all. Then come back home and talk about it, and, perhaps, write about it, just like this!

Wasn't it nice for the law to say that the consumer had to pay the three per cent electrical energy tax?

THE OLD O. S. T. ANEW.

WE ARE witnessing the transition of the Trail of Horror back to the Old Spanish Trail.

Since Commissioner Thames and his associates are rebuilding and hardsurfacing the O. S. T. from the La-Miss. State line out to Bay St. Louis a transformation beyond imagination has resulted and soon we will see the death trail grow into a "thing of beauty and joy forever."

Old Spanish Trail of the past may well be called death trail or death valley, as some one has said. It has been the place where many men and women have met untimely death; place where many painful accidents have occurred and men and women maimed for life, and, last but not least, where many automobiles, property of value in dollars and cents, wrecked and lost. For these lives and maimed bodies there can be no compensation.

For those who have lost their lives there is no remedy. For the sorrow and grief resultant there is no balm. It is a sad contemplation. A situation for which there cannot be much reason or extenuation.

Although the new trail surface is not finished, it is in progress of construction, travelers not only feel the thrill of such travel as afforded but there is another element more worthy than all other consideration, the safety afforded. It is noted that all trees on edge of highway have been removed as dangerous hazards and all short curves are being widened and short corners cut away.

Since good roads shorten distances by cutting down time of travel and means for safety of life, we view the Old Spanish Trail in Hancock county in the most engaging interest and delightful aspect. It is truly inviting and will prove a means of bringing more people this way who heretofore were apprehensive and as a matter of just caution remained away.

Highway Commissioner Thames and associates are doing a good job of the work. They hope to complete it at the earliest date, consistent with good and permanent work.

This is a good time to use The Echo's classified column to sell that discarded article, or to advertise for what you want to buy cheap.

GULF COAST REGATTA SEASON.

THIS is the season of Gulf Coast regattas. Pass Christian and Biloxi have had their regattas for the season attracting thousands of visitors to these sections of the Coast and keeping the tradition of the Coast for aquatic sports.

Biloxi is nationally known for its own boats, in number, design and speed quality and the fine seamanship that makes these things possible in the last analysis. Annual regatta is one of Biloxi's big drawing cards. Magazines and newspapers over the country for weeks in advance and long after the regatta publish accounts of the event and pictures of the craft.

Pass Christian, across the bay from Bay St. Louis, last Saturday donned its holiday attire and no painter nor mind has ever pictured a more typical picture of said sky and water than on this occasion.

Many white sail dotted the picture. Blue skies and bright day with ideal breezes all conspired to give the Pass one of its more successful regattas.

These regattas are part of our coast life, its tradition and gives every atmosphere to this section. We hail the regatta season and regret it is only all too short.

It is never too hot for people to have a good time in spite of heat and other troubles the average Bay St. Louis citizen finds it pleasant to take a day off.

VIEWS OF OUR NEWS

By Chicagoan

A Review of the News of Last Week's Echo.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 19.—Time rolls on; the world goes into another week. The President and Congress have quarreled again. This time it was about the particular brand of relief to be extended to the people. Political charges filled the air, and from these there is no immediate hope for relief. What a relief it will be when that day dawns in which relief will not be the topic upmost in so many minds.

While respecting the efforts made in both White House and congressional halls, E. H. Bryson will devote his energies to assisting Hancock County farmers with their own programs of relief. Among them there is no sparring for political advantage. Each puts a shoulder to the wheel, even though the load seemed ever to increase. And when the history of The Era of The Great Hunger is written it may show that such efforts as that of County Agent Bryson did more to alleviate the distress than all the political parties combined.

Again, the Know Mississippi Better Train will steam forth to show the residents of other states what Mississippi holds in store for its citizens, and to point the way for relief from some of the problems troubling them in their present locations. Mr. W. A. McDonald, whose name has been prominently associated with the movement from its inception, is again preparing and anxious to impart all information regarding this annual excursion through which Mississippi has become well known in all parts of the continent.

Candidates for city office, reports The Echo, are already making their campaigns, despite the fact that the date of the election has not yet been announced. The date is not half so important, think these energetic candidates, as is the manner in which votes will be cast. It will be interesting to watch future issues of The Echo to ascertain whether or not it is always true that the early bird, etc.

In historical accounts of our railroads there appears often the names of men who made fortunes largely through manipulating the securities of their roads. Not so often do we hear of honors so deservedly bestowed as those conferred upon John A. Green by The Echo last week. His fifty eight years of real service to the patrons of the Louisville & Nashville are an example, as The Echo says, to the youth of today. Great transportation companies of today owe their success to employees like Mr. Green. The higher executives have served their roads best by selecting such men for important posts, and by giving them such well earned recognition.

At Biloxi next week, so announces The Echo, the Mississippi American Legion will meet, with Commander Laurent Dickson of Bay St. Louis occupying a prominent place in the program. A member of the Trophies and Awards Committee, Mr. Dickson will be called upon to pass upon the comparative records made by the various posts of the state. The local Legion Membership of 74 members who place great confidence in their commander and the other citizens of Bay St. Louis, who well know the quality of local Legion administration, know the state body has made a good selection.

Not often, even in large cities, are people afforded such intellectual and social treats as Mrs. John N. Stewart provided her guests last Friday afternoon. Those assembled were privileged to enjoy again the hospitality of Mrs. Stewart, to meet the nationally famous artist, Miss Edith Duggan, and to view her portrait of Mrs. Charles Farwell, which, as time goes on and the reputation of the artist widens will become an object of great value. Many will remember then they were acquainted with the subject of the study, and that they were present at its first exhibition.

The business of Bay St. Louis merchants is relieving the wants of the community. But it's a little more than just providing food, clothing, farm and household necessities. The merchandising must be done efficiently, and to be completely so, the cooperation of the people of the community is necessary. The merchant helps maintain living standards when he buys and manages so that he can give greater value for his customer's dollars. But regardless of how well a merchant does part of his work, the people may pass up his store unless he keeps them advised of what's

A PLEA TO EAT FISH AND TO POPULARIZE THE DELICIOUS SEA EDIBLE

Editor N. O. States Says We Are not Sufficiently Fish Conscious—Bay St. Louis and New Orleans People Should Cultivate "Eat More Fish."

We must heartily agree with the editor of the New Orleans States, who, in an editorial last Sunday, "There's Nothing Better," makes a plea for the eating of more fish—and, particularly the kind of fish we have here in Bay St. Louis and the Mississippi Gulf Coast. There is none better.

There is no doubt we do not eat enough fish. It is plentiful, cheap in price and, above all, healthful. There is no dearth of fish. And what variety one may have!

Bay St. Louis vendors around the L. & N. railroad depot have long ago popularized "fried fish" and "fried oysters" the latter in season. And the vendor is not a familiar thing of the past. He and associate vendors are still there. Meet all trains. But we are told that today more fish sandwiches are sold to freight rather than passenger trains, which would indicate more people are riding the freight trains.

But to get back to the editor of the States. Here is what he writes: "The hot-fish have the hot-dogs on the run in St. Louis. Hundreds of hot-fish stands have recently sprung up there, and the reason is intelligent newspaper advertising."

Why don't the fish dealers in other communities follow the lead of St. Louis? asks the Department of Commerce. They can start a new business, the department says, if they advertise in the newspapers.

If newspaper advertising can sell hot fish, in this weather, it can sell anything.

The more we think of the Department of Commerce's suggestion, the more we are sold on the thought. Not because we are interested in newspapers, but because we are interested in fish.

We are writing these comments at the midway between breakfast and lunch, and we are exalted with visions of crisp and crackly fish, piping hot and sending off a rich aroma. The more we think, the more we yearn. The tables of our mind are spread with a noble repast of fish, cooked in a hundred ways—all kinds of fish, from the inconsequential croaker to the satisfying sheepshead, from the fried slab of trout taken on the run, so to speak, at a roadside stand, to the regal pompano en papillote, partaken of at a three hour banquet, with the details of which we will regale the children and grandchildren and so start them on the road to optimism.

"Ever since we traveled the Gulf coast road, and that has been for many happy years, we have heard the fried-fish vendors calling their wares, when the train stops, at Bay St. Louis. It is the only place that makes a specialty of this offering, though the train for many miles passes within sight of the sea. And the number of sales is depressingly low."

"We are not sufficiently fish-conscious. The Bay St. Louis people at the Gulf Coast people, the New Orleans people ought to develop a newspaper campaign to make grownups cry for fish as children do for a certain article whose merits were impressed upon the world by advertising. Why should we wait for Fridays to eat fish? There are six other days in the week, and if we get the fish habit, we will have another reason for looking forward to leap year, because that will mean an extra day on which we can order fish, morning, noon and night."

Way Paved For Issuing Bonds for Gulfport Docks

An act of the recent legislature authorizing impounding of two mills of the eight-mill state ad valorem tax to permit issuance of a million dollars worth of bonds by the city of Gulfport for improvement of dockage facilities at Mississippi's only port of entry, was declared constitutional by the attorney general's office at Jackson Monday.

Houston Evans, Gulfport, attorney for the port commission, had requested a ruling on the legislative act to clear up certain doubtful provisions.

The decision paves the way for immediate issuance of the bonds, it was said at the attorney general's office.

Incumbent Wins In Pass Christian Second Primary

In the race for alderman of the Second Ward, E. A. McCollier defeated W. J. Hursey, the vote being 116 to 102.

SCREEN VERSION OF "RED HEADED WOMAN" SPLENDID

Jean Harlow at Her Best as Sexy Typist of Noted
Best-Seller.

Transferring a novel so sensational and so widely-read as Katherine Brush's "Red Headed Woman" to the screen was something of a challenge to the talkies. But the feat has been accomplished in a highly workmanlike manner in the film to appear at the A. & G. Theater Sunday and Monday.

As surprising as the story itself is the appearance in the title role of Jean Harlow. Miss Harlow has never before had a role which imposes so stern a requirement on her acting ability, and she meets the test with flying colors. Those who recall her previous efforts will find a new Jean Harlow in this "Lil Andrews" of the Katherine Brush tale. In voice and gesture and poise she has gained considerably, doubtless through the realization that she plays a role which every actress was said to covet.

Study in Selfishness.

The "Red Headed Woman" is no saccharine character. She is a study in selfishness in the havoc a woman can bring on herself and those around her by making her personal desires her only law and goal. In bringing the novel to the screen Nita Loos, as adapter, has seen fit to end the story in her peculiar comedy strain and the film gains in entertainment value through this sacrifice of grim reality. Anita Loos, long the friend of the blondes, has done her share of this particular "Red Headed Woman."

Chester Morris Scores

As the husband who dances to the tune of the red-head's siren song, Chester Morris has a role far removed from his usual gunman type of roles. He shows a nice understanding of his part and makes his difficult role always believable. Distinguished performances are also offered by Lewis Stone, as the father; Leila Hyams, as the disillusioned wife; Una Merkel, Henry Stephenson, May Robson, Charles Boyer and Harvey Clark. The able direction of Jack Conway also helps to make "Red Headed Woman" an outstanding screen transcription of the widely-read novel.

STATE GAME WARDEN ANNOUNCES DOVE SEASON CLOSED IN MISS.

Hunter Kimball Makes Appeal For Protection of Doves—
Interest to Hunters.

In an appeal being issued to the people of Mississippi for the protection of doves, Hunter Kimball, state director of conservation, states that the open and closed seasons on these migratory birds are governed by Federal regulations.

In Mississippi there are two periods during which doves may be hunted, namely: September 1 to September 30th, and November 20th to January 31st. The State Game and Fish Commission is advised that Federal Game Protectors located throughout the southwestern states are interested themselves in the enforcement of the closed season on doves; and all Mississippi sportsmen, land owners, and other interested parties are urged to lend their cooperation to the protection of these migratory birds.

Doves may be hunted lawfully in Mississippi during the entire month of September, and also from November 20th to January 31st. Director Kimball states that the licenses which must be obtained under the provisions of Mississippi game laws will be made available through the sheriffs of the various counties about August 15th; the fee for county hunting license being $1.00, and state hunting license $3.00—all hunting licenses expiring on October 1st of each year, under the new Game and Fish law.

DOG SAVES LIVES OF FOUR AS FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Animal Leaps on Bed Of Sleeper When Barking
Brings No Response

Gulfport, Miss., July 19.—A dog saved the lives of four persons at midnight Monday night when the house in which they were sleeping was destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Ruth Scott, her little son, and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Capers, were sleeping soundly about midnight when their dog Stinger began barking shrilly and unable to rouse the family ran and jumped on the bed where Mr. Capers was sleeping just in time to permit the four to escape from the burning house with their lives.

The house, a five-room frame residence at 18th avenue and 22nd avenue, and the entire furnishings were destroyed.

The origin of the fire was undetermined, but there was probability that it started from a defective flue, it was reported. Mrs. Scott estimated her loss at around $2500 and said she carried only a small amount of insurance on the building with a none on the furniture.

FOR THE PROTECTION OF FISH AND GAME

TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC:

I take this method of informing you that the legislature of the State of Mississippi at its 1932 session passed a new game and fish law, you will find this in the 1932 laws house bill No. 116 and we would be delighted if every man or woman who fishes and hunts in the State of Mississippi would read this law that they might be familiar with its contents.

Section 17 of this act sets out the duties of the executive officers and which reads as follows: Any violation or attempt to violate any of the provisions of this Act, or any law or regulation for the protection of wild animals, birds, or fish shall constitute and is hereby declared a misdemeanor. All Sheriffs, Deputy Sheriffs, Constables and Peace Officers of this State are hereby made Ex-Officio Special Game and Fish Wardens and it shall be their duty to aid in the enforcement of such laws or regulations.

Mr. Hunter Kimball residing in Jackson, has been appointed State Game Warden and it is his earnest desire that all executive officers in each county of the state co-operate with the conservation commission in the enforcement of this law.

The executive force of Hancock County unanimously agrees to co-operate with Mr. Kimball and use every means possible to protect the game and the fish until the season opens. We are posting notices along the lines of this county and instructing our deputies to see that this law is not violated. I am an old hunter and I have found that one of the main evils or one of the main reasons why this law is not bringing results is due to the fact that the local game wardens and the executive officers of the county do not attempt to enforce this law until after the season is open. We need this protection earlier in the season and our officers here are now on the job and will prosecute to the full extent of the law any one hunting in this county until the season is open and the proper license secured. They will also prosecute to the full extent of the law any non resident fishing in the lakes or streams of this county who has not already procured the necessary license at the initiative cost of $5.00.

We sincerely hope that every citizen of Hancock County will co-operate with this office giving such information as will lead to the apprehension of any one violating this law. Such information will be treated strictly confidential and we believe it is the intention and certainly the duty of every citizen to give us this information.

VETERAN TENDER OF COAST LIGHTS LEAVES SERVICE

Native of New Orleans Concludes Thirty-Five and a Half Years of Duty—Voluntarily Retired July 1st.

With a record of 35½ years of continuous service in the United States Lighthouse service, Captain Thomas N. Clarisse voluntarily retired July 1 and with his wife, who has been his companion during the greater portion of the time he has spent in the lighthouse work, went to Gulfport to reside permanently.

Captain Clarisse has served as a light keeper from Pensacola, Fla., to Sabine Pass, Tex., and prior to his retirement had been at the Ship Island light since January 1, 1929. Upon entering the service in 1889 he was assigned to the Chandelier light where he remained until 1896 when he was transferred to Sabine Pass. In 1904 he was transferred to the Cat Island light and eight years later was sent to Pensacola where he remained until his transfer to Ship Island.

During his connection with the light service, Captain Clarisse saw the system of lighting change from the hand lamp to the electric light. Lamps lighted at sunset were replaced by other lamps at midnight which burned until sunrise. The Ship Island light during the past few years was converted into the flash type.

Captain Clarisse is a native of New Orleans and is a son of the late Captain James Clarisse, also of New Orleans.

Fred Shuman of Gulfport has been appointed keeper of the light at Ship Island with O. A. Still of Mobile and Howard Stone of Gulfport as his assistants.

Artesian Wells At Water Valley Go Dry

Seven artesian wells have gone dry at Water Valley and Water Valley citizens find themselves with no water supply whatever except the few hundred gallons in the emergency tank, a situation more serious than has confronted the city in years.

The dry, hot weather is largely blamed for the wells running dry. Last Thursday the first of the seven wells was exhausted of its supply and during Friday night and Saturday six others gave out, throwing the water works upon relief well of 500 gallons per minute, which broke down under the strain and itself went dry Saturday afternoon.

Mayor F. B. DeShon issued an appeal to citizens to abstain from using water except for cooking and drinking purposes. He ordered officers to watch that citizens should not use the reserve supply to water lawns and the like.

SWIMMING

Just swimming in St. Louis' Bay,
With water all around;
Just letting cooling wavelets play,
With merry, splashing sound.

Just treading through the waters bright,
Diving in cooling deep;
Just wand'ring neath the sunny light,
In reveries of sleep.

Just splashing, jumping, swimming long,
In freedom of the bay;
Just list'ning to the wind's sweet song,
In lullabies all day.

Oh happy waters of the bay,
While sailing on your breast;
Oh loving idleness of the day,
Weaving visions of rest.

Sweet waters, dear in day or night,
In sun or silver moon;
Always giving peace and delight,
With whispered songs that croon.

Here love is haunting neath a star,
Ready for some sweet kiss;
Here memories come from afar,
Wooing us with such bliss.

COMMENT ON SPORTS BY SHERIDAN

Equipoise's Record Ready For Olympics Radio Censorship Baseball Outlook A French "Decision"

Equipoise, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's wonder horse, has reeled off seven straight victories in a row. The last was the $20,000 Arlington Gold Cup which sent his earnings to $228,760 and placed him eleventh in the list of money winners, just below Man o' War and just ahead of Sarazen.

In winning seven stake events this year he has earned $68,825 and has performed extremely well in his last three races which include besides his last triumph, the Stars and Stripes handicap on July 4th, and his world's record mile the week before.

The record of Equipoise is a sparkling piece of turf history. Brought back to the race early this spring after a two-year layoff, the horse made his first start on April 13th, at Bowie and won the 5-furlong race. At Havre De Grace "Ec" won a 6-furlong race and followed it by another victory at Belmont. On May 21st he took first place in the mile handicap, two furlongs farther than his last two races. Then, the horse moved to Arlington where he established a new world's record for the mile, won the Stars and Stripes handicap under an impost of 129 pounds and concluded his seven straight victories in the Gold Cup event, where he defeated Gusto, winner of the $50,000 American Derby.

The total number of American contestants at the Olympic Games to be held at Los Angeles will be 340, some 60 under the delegation that went to Amsterdam in 1928. In making the announcement, the Olympic Committee which had at one time despaired of raising sufficient funds to provide a real representation of American athletes stated that they lacked only $48,000 of the goal which had been considerably reduced below the $350,000 originally thought necessary.

Quite interesting is the regulation of the New York State Athletic Commission providing that only "boxing experts will be permitted to broadcast radio descriptions of future bouts in that state. The Commission said a boxing or wrestling expert, sports writer, referee or judge would be judged competent mission said a boxing or wrestling bouts. The rule comes about as a result of the radio account of the Schmeling-Sharkey fracas in which Charles Francis Coe, author, and Graham McNamee announcer, indicated that Schmeling had gained a wide lead in points over Sharkey, with the result that the radio fans were amazed at the decision.

The radio companies announce that they will fight any such attempt to censor their accounts of public events. It is also to be said that a majority of the critics at the ring-side who would be considered eligible under the new rule to judge also thought that Schmeling had won.

Cleveland fans got plenty for their money when the Indians and Athletics staged a hectic 18-inning battle, with the final 18-17 victory for the Philadelphians. Rommel, who pitched 17 innings, got credit for the victory and Wes Ferrell, who pitched the last 11 together 58 hits were made off five pitchers, three being homers by Fox. Johnny Burnett, Indian shortstop got nine hits out of eleven times at the bat.

Rogers Hornsby, bereft of the service of his shortstop, Bill Jurgens who was shot by a female admirer plans to use English at short and Stanley Hack at third. The latter is just a kid and needs polish but has shown signs of being a real good hitter. Last year he got his chance with Sacramento when the regular third baseman broke his leg and played in such phenomenal style as to be bought by the Cubs at a big figure. Hornsby says that he will take over the third sack himself if Hack fails to deliver.

The race in the American League continues to show the Yankees well ahead of their challengers, with indications that Philadelphia, Detroit and Cleveland need more than they have been able to show thus far if the New York crew is to be stopped. On several occasions, the Yankees showed evidences of the slump that usually comes to all leaders but their chief contenders have not been able to take advantage of these momentary lapses. Meantime Connie Mack believes that his team is entitled to a few breaks from now on and that his pitching will be better. It was a hard blow to lose the services of Grove for nearly a month and it remains to be seen what effect his injured ankle will have on his pitching for the rest of the year.

Bill Dickey, one of the chief cogs in the Yankee pennant drive, will find his punch on Carl Reynolds' jaw a costly blow to himself and also to his team. President Harridge suspended the New York catcher for thirty days and assessed a fine of $1,000. Over the appeal of Jacob Ruppert, the League directors not only upheld the sentence as "just" but prescribed a similar penalty for future cases of "unwarranted slugging."

The penalty, one of the heaviest ever assessed a major league player for fighting, followed the occurrence in the first game of the July 4th double-header between New York and Washington. Carl Reynolds, Washington outfielder, scored standing up on a squeeze play and as he passed the Yankee catcher, Dickey struck him a full blow on the jaw which was broken in two places. The Washington player it is expected, will be out of the game for one month. The League president acted promptly upon receiving a report from his umpire.

Earlier in the season, Manager Fonseca and three White Sox players were fined for fighting with Umpire Moriarty, at Cleveland, on Memorial Day, drawing fines aggregating $1350. However, these fines are not to be compared with that given Babe Ruth for his barnstorming trip after the 1922 World series check for $3,362 and was kept out of the game for forty days in 1923.

French boxing enthusiasts have their own method of preventing decisions like that which astounded Americans at the recent Sharkey-Schmeling fracas. At Marseilles where Al Brown, Panama negro, and Kid Francis of Italy, fought a 15-round bout, the referee and one judge split their ballots, leaving the final decision to an American doctor, G. V. Sparks. The crowd madly partisan for Francis, feared that he would vote for Brown, swarmed into the ring, handled him roughly and tore up his ballot. Seventy policemen were needed to restore order and the bout was called "no contest."

Frankie Frisch, Cardinal second baseman, has been selected as the most valuable player in the National League during 1931 and has been given a certificate and a lamp. The presentation took place at Brooklyn, Sunday. Tom Connelly, former American League umpire, says that Chief Bender threw the fastest ball he ever saw. Rene La Coste is considered out of Davis Cup play as a result of losing two matches in an informal series with the Australian team. Vernon Gomez and Lefty Grove are having quite a battle for pitching honors in the American League, with both of them being severely punished in the first part of July.

GROWING OF TUNG TREES HELD BOON FOR GULF STATES

Development of Industry Promises Profit on Cut-Over Land—Large Tracts in Southern Mississippi are Available For Development of Groves

Washington, July 17.—A distinct boon to Mississippi, Louisiana and other Gulf states is seen in the development of the tung oil industry. In a special bulletin which will be available tomorrow, the department of commerce takes the position that the planting phase of this industry represents "a splendid contribution to the diversification of Southern agriculture." In addition, the bulletin points out that the erection and operation of mills for the extraction of the oil from the tung nut will "amplify industrial activity in the Gulf states" and "tend to encourage the movement of paint and varnish and other consuming industries to Southern plant locations."

The development points the way to the profitable use of cut-over lands. It carries with it promise of large employment and the freeing of American industry from dependence upon a single foreign source of supply.

Tung Oil Essential

Tung oil is an essential raw material. It is the best drying and waterproofing oil of vegetable origin known to science, the department states. At present the principal source of supply is Central and Southern China. Because of conditions prevailing in China there has been great irregularity in the receipt of necessary supplies of tung oil. Moreover, it has been difficult to secure uniformity in quality. Prices fluctuate widely. Purchases of tung oil by American industry have been as high as $15,000,000 a year.

Discussing the progress which has been made in Mississippi and Louisiana, the bulletin says: "Planting progress in Mississippi has been one of the outstanding features of domestic tung oil development during the past few years. Only a few experimental adaptability tests were previously made in the state, and active interest was not evident until the spring of 1928. Nevertheless, at present Mississippi possesses at Picayune, the largest individual tung-tree plantation in the United States, aggregating over 7500 acres as well as a number of other groves of substantial acreage, and is approaching Florida in respect to total acreage planted."

Differs in Mississippi

"From scattered early plantings and later investigations of soil and climatic sections of the state were well adapted to the growing of the tung tree. Desirable soil characteristics, good drainage, and well-distributed annual precipitation in Southern Mississippi were considered especially favorable to development in that region. Prior to actual development, Mississippi planters carefully studied all previous practice in Florida and other states and selected improved procedure adapted to the character of plantings proposed. "In general, however, the concept of tung tree planting differs materially in Mississippi from that prevailing in other regions. The setting out of extensive individual groves and the attainment of low planting costs per acre by the use of machine methods of clearing, planting and cultivating were undertaken. Minimum cultivation and fertilization were contemplated initially, by reason of the natural richness of the soils. Substantial profits were visualized, even in the face of possible lower nut yields, by means of large-scale activity, the distribution of the overhead of operation over an extended acreage, and the resultant low cost of production per acre, in contrast with Florida methods predicated upon intensive cultivation and fertilization, with particular attention to high yields per tree and per acre.

Cut-Over Lands Used

"The progress of tung oil tree plantings in Mississippi resulted primarily from the growing realization of the need for profitable utilization of cut-over timberlands and the desire of lumber companies to diversify their activities. Timber-tract owners and important Southern lumbermen are identified with the principal tung oil developments in that state.

"The availability of extensive tracts of such land was conducive to large-scale development. At present over 90 per cent of the acreage in Mississippi represents the planting efforts of five large commercial grove enterprises.

"The principal plantings thus far have been recorded in Pearl River, Stone and Jackson counties, supplemented by smaller developments and experimental plots reported in Forrest, Perry, Jones, George and Harrison counties. Nursery plantings are well developed, the largest of which are maintained by the owners of the leading commercial groves. Large tracts of land in Southern Mississippi are available for development of commercial groves. Much of this acreage is considered eminently suited to the growth of Aleurites fordii, and plantings now contemplated are expected to amplify considerably present tung tree acreage during the next few years. Most of the Mississippi tung trees are now 1 to 5 years old. One of the leading companies operating in the state anticipating nut-crop production in 1933, plans to install a modern tungmill in the near future. The first substantial tung-nut crop in Mississippi was recorded in 1931, when 40,000 pounds of nuts were harvested.

Promising Results Obtained

"Early plantings of Aleurites fordii from trees sent out by Doctor Fairchild in certain sections of Louisiana gave promising results. Further experimental planting research was undertaken by the state department of conservation at testing stations at Woolworth, Jeanerette, Thibodeaux, Carlisle, Elizabeth and Sherburne, during the period 1925 to 1928. Stimulated by publicity relating to possibilities in the state, a number of private individuals, real estate firms, and lumber companies set out trees in small plots for observation. Poor drainage has restricted development in many sections of Southern Louisiana, but several areas have demonstrated their suitability for the cultivation of this tree.

"The real development of fair-sized commercial groves was not begun until 1928, and even at the present time the total acreage is not relatively large. Several plantings ranging from 50 to 100 acres each are reported, as well as two outstanding developments on each of which between 350 and 500 acres of trees are being grown. Nut yields were received from about a third of total acreage in 1931, and over half of the trees will bear a crop in 1932.

"The principal plantings of tung trees are at present reported in the parishes of Washington and St. Tammany, although commercial-grove activity is also evident in Beauregard and Allen parishes in the eastern part of the state. Grove acreage is being slowly extended elsewhere in Louisiana, and a number of other parishes may soon occupy a more significant position in the Louisiana tung oil industry."

"The Vilest Sinner May Return."

TOM HEFLIN, former senator from Alabama, announces he will support the democratic party.

"Hard luck"—for old democracy. Four years ago, Heflin bolted the party of the south—and by opposition rendered splendid service to the cause which he opposed. Apparently the "pickings" are not so good outside the democratic ranks. The republicans have place aplenty for all the party "gravy" among the party faithfuls—nothing left for turn-coat democrats. So peewee Tom comes back. Slight welcome at home and sneering scorn abroad. Held in utter contempt of both party friends and political foes. However, perhaps, democracy can afford to forgive and forget. Democracy is tolerant. "While the light holds out to burn," "The vilest sinner may return." Yes, even Thomas Heflin of old Alabama. Broke again.

State's Penal Farm Population Increases During Last Month

A marked increase in Mississippi's penal population was noted during June, according to figures made public today by the prison registrar here.

During the period May 25-June 30, the penal population increased, the total number of convicts going to 2,232. There were 102 new prisoners added to the rolls.

Hinds county led in supplying new prisoners, sending 33 to the state penitentiary during the period. Lafayette county was second with 14. The report disclosed only one pardon was issued during the period, further suspension granted one convict and one revocation of another suspension.

Of 13 prisoners who escaped during June seven were recaptured, the report showed. Fifty-seven were discharged, having completed their sentences, three died and one prisoner returned voluntarily. Another was returned from court and two from suspensions.

Thirty-two of the new prisoners were white men. Of the 102 new prisoners, eight, all negroes, were life-terms.

THE ECHO'S COOKING CLASS

(For The Sea Coast Echo)

The season of corn is short, so we wish to serve it often and in many different ways. Most of us enjoy eating corn on the cob, steaming hot with butter, salt and pepper. There are many ways of introducing corn into the meals. These recipes may be served the year round as one can buy canned corn of excellent flavor.

Corn Chowder Bisque

Cut 2 slices of salt pork into one quarter inch cubes and fry until a light brown and crisp in the chowder kettle. Remove from the fire, add 4 small onions finely minced, 6 medium potatoes sliced, 4 medium tomatoes peeled and diced, arranging the in layers. Sprinkle salt and pepper over each layer, using 2 tablespoons of salt and ¼ teaspoon of pepper. Cover with 1 pint of boiling water and simmer until the vegetables are nearly tender. Add 2 cups of corn and cook 10 minutes more. Add ¼ teaspoon of soda and 1 quart of hot milk which has been thickened slightly with 1 teaspoon each of butter and flour blended together. Stir rapidly while adding the milk and serve hot.

Corn Au Gratin

To one cup of cooked corn add 2 well beaten egg yolks. Sauté ¼ green pepper finely minced and one tablespoon of minced onion in 2 tablespoons of fat and add to the above mixture with 1 teaspoon of salt and 1-8 teaspoon of paprika. With a fork fold 1 cup of cooked rice lightly into the corn mixture. Turn ¼ of this into a buttered casserole, add ¼ cup of grated cheese as a middle layer, add the rest of corn mixture and sprinkle ¼ cup of grated cheese on top. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes.

Scalloped Corn and Ham

Place 1 cup of cooked corn in a buttered baking dish, spread over it ¼ cup of cracker crumbs and ½ cup of ground boiled ham, dot with 1 teaspoon of butter and sprinkle with salt. Add another cup of corn and spread with ¼ cup of cracker crumbs—sprinkle with salt and pepper, dot with butter. Pour over it 1 cup of milk and bake thirty minutes in an oven 325 degrees.

Corn Balls

2 ½ cups corn
1 egg
1 tablespoon minced onion.
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 ½ cup cracker crumbs

Asheville, N. C., July 17.—The Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association experienced a net gain of six members of the past year and has assurances of several publishers that they expect to join within a few months. This was made known here tonight by Cranson Williams, secretary-manager, in releasing his annual report to the convention, which gets under way tomorrow.

The association has five honorary life members. They are F. L. Seely, Asheville, former publisher of the Atlanta Georgian; Adolph J. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times; M. E. Foster, editor of the Houston Press and former publisher of the Houston Chronicle; Urey Woodson, former publisher of the Owensboro Messenger and Walter H. Savory of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company.

The definition of a newspaper as used in an address by Colonel Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune was commended by Mr. Williams as an effective definition of a newspaper today. It follows:

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mould public opinion, and to furnish that check up on government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

AN OPEN LETTER TO PRESIDENT W. R. COLE, L. & N. R. CO. FROM A WAVELAND COMMUTER.

July 14, 1932.

To The Editor Sea Coast Echo:

Mr. W. R. Cole, President, Louisville & Nashville Railroad, Louisville, Kentucky.

Dear Mr. Cole:

The public is a long sufferer. For ten years I have been a summer commuter from New Orleans to the Gulf Coast, via the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. During that time there has been much for which all commuters have had serious cause for complaint, but the present service being afforded to late afternoon commuters by your 5:20 train, has reached a point which makes it necessary that proper and adequate notice be given to you personally, of the conditions which exist.

We have been experiencing exceedingly warm weather for the last few weeks, but that condition is not unusual, and it is all the more reason why your Railroad should take steps to attempt to make the public more comfortable. To the contrary, however, it is apparent that no consideration whatsoever has been given to the subject by your Railroad.

By actual test, the temperature inside of your railroad coaches has been from ten to fifteen degrees hotter than it has been outside, and in addition to that factor, you are using a smaller number of coaches this year than you have apparently used in prior years, making it necessary that the coaches be more crowded with passengers, and intensifying the terrific heat conditions existing therein.

I am informed that one of the causes for this condition is the fact that your coaches remain in the broiling sun all of the day, or most of the day, and it is not until the coaches are about to leave the city that the fans are turned on, and, as a matter of fact, on yesterday the train was nearly twenty miles out of New Orleans before the ventilators were opened.

I am not unmindful of the present economic conditions which make it necessary that your Railroad conserve its operating expenses, and put into effect measures consistent with present-day conditions, and were I to place myself in your position I should follow closely along those lines. However, it is not possible to conceive that the expense of operation of your Railroad would be in the slightest degree increased by the affording to that patronage of your Railroad, which I understand has always been profitable to you, a little consideration and thought necessary to remedy the condition to which I refer herein.

I would like you to put yourself in the shoes of the commuter, and if possible either get on the 5:20 train in the afternoon about 5:00 o'clock, when it enters the L. & N. station, or else have one of your representative officials do so. The result of such a visit, I am sure, would be immediate rectification, and would redound to the comfort of the commuting public and hence to the operating revenues of the Railroad.

Very truly yours,
S. SANFORD LEVY.

1000 Mellons Cut In Party Given To Gulfport's Poor

A thousand watermelons, cut into four slices each, were served to Gulfport's poor Monday at the city's curb market in the largest public watermelon cutting ever held in South Mississippi.

The more than 2000 boys and girls many of them barefoot and dressed almost in tatters, were joined early by hundreds of adults to be on hand for the forenoon cutting when the first 500 mellons were carved into quarters and distributed.

The second cutting attracted virtually as many eaters as did the first. Cantaloupes, grown at Poplarville, and tomatoes, grown near Purvis, were also served the big group. I. Shemper was in charge of the program. The United Charities of Gulfport assisted.

A Paying Game

A dub golfer played his approach shot. It was blind hole and also rather short. The caddie, just visible over the intervening knoll, gestulated wildly for a moment.

"What is it?" said the golfer, coming up to the green.

"You've holed out," said the caddie.

"Done it in two?"

Sure enough, the ball was down. The player gave the caddie half a dollar. The next day every man who went out with that caddie did the same hole in two.—Exchange.

I SEE THE MOUNTAINS STILL.

I see the mountains still,
Beck'ning to me;
My days with dreams they fill,
Eternally.

I see the shadows play,
Over their head;
I see the winding way
Which I would tread.

I see their dizzy height,
Beneath the sky;
To them I would take flight,
To dream and sigh.

I see the caverns tall,
So dark and still;
I hear the wild birds call,
In songs that thrill.

I long to tread the trail,
Up high, so high;
Alone in some dear vale,
On wings to fly.

I hear their mighty voice,
In peace or storm;
With them I would rejoice,
Joy in their arm.

Dear mountains wait for me,
Till I return;
Your face I long to see,
In joys that burn.

Traffic Jammed When Alligator Crawls on Road

Hammond, La., July 18.—Traffic on the highway between Hammond and Manchac was tied up for about 30 minutes Monday afternoon when a seven-foot alligator claimed the right of way.

Fred Montgomery, operator of a truck, decided to make a capture. Obtaining a rope, he experienced little trouble in lassoing the alligator and with the aid of a block and tackle finally got him loaded on the truck.

Years ago alligators were plentiful in the district between Manchac and Ponchartroula. Now they are rare.

MAN LOST 26 POUNDS LOOKS 100% BETTER

Feels Stronger Than Ever.

Just to prove to any doubtful man or woman that Kruschen Salts is the SAFE way to reduce—let us take the letter of Mr. F. J. Fritz of Cincinnati, Ohio, recently received.

He writes: "I've tried extreme dieting, setting up exercises with very little results—but the results from Kruschen are almost incredible. In 3 months I reduced from 205 to 179 pounds and feel stronger than ever—no more wheezing or gasping for breath—friendly, say I look 100 per cent better."

Bear in mind, you fat men, that there is danger in too much fat—try the safe way to reduce—one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats and sweets—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—get it at any drugstore in the world.

CONGRESSMAN

Robert S. Hall ANSWERS FALSEHOOD.

He Gives The People The Truth.

To the people of the sixth Congressional District:

Upon my return from Washington where I have been working almost day and night in the interest of my district during the closing days of congress—I learn that there is being purposely peddled propaganda against my interest because one of my sons holds a position in Washington. In order that the good people of my district may know the truth I desire to make the following statement:

During the year 1928 the good people of the Sixth Congressional District elected me as their Representative in Washington. I assumed this high office in March, 1929. Realizing the necessity of having efficient clerical help, I selected my son, Edward Currie Hall, as Secretary who, before assuming the place, had intensive preparation in order to take care of the responsible duties entailed by the position. He received the salary of $325.00 per month out of which he compensated other office help.

No person in my district failed to receive an immediate reply to any letter addressed to me or to the office in Washington. This efficient handling of the voluminous correspondence and labor incident to making investigations asked for by my constituency has enabled me to serve my people in a manner in which I take pride.

When the Democrats organized the House at the beginning of this year I was honored by the Speaker, Honorable John N. Garner, by being made Chairman of the important Reclamation and Irrigation Committee. This committee, composed of nine Democrats and seven Republicans, unanimously selected my son, Edward C. Hall, as Clerk of the committee. He immediately resigned as my secretary and devoted his time to handling the affairs required by the committee.

The scope of the Reclamation and Irrigation work is spread over the entire United States the members receiving hundreds of letters which must be handled by the Clerk.

A complete filing system is required and the duties are not connected in any way with the constituency work of your Congressman. The charge of "Nepotism" cannot in any way be laid at my door. No member of my family has ever received a dollar through my office except my son, as explained above, and he not since the first of this year.

The present employees of my office were selected by me for efficiency and ability, thus enabling me to render the service required by the people of this district.

The only reason I take the trouble to answer this infamous falsehood is because my friends might be led astray by malicious and vicious falsifiers into believing part of the propaganda. My record in Congress is open to the public and my presence at the sessions of the House is a matter of record.

No one who knows me will believe that one red cent has been misappropriated and this vicious lie and propaganda will now cease.

My proven ability to serve this district as Congressman is known to every one of its people. My every effort has been to take care of your interests, either personal or public, and all I ask is a fair and careful investigation of the flagrant falsehood of "Nepotism" hurled at me by those who desire personal benefit.

Sincerely yours,
ROBERT S. HALL.

mander Dickson for the post. In addition honorable mention was given for several distinguishing attributes.

Delegates from Hancock county were Commander Laurent Dickson, Albert S. McQueen, Henry Capdepone, C. M. Burgdahl.

The parade Monday afternoon, which was headed by Captain Edmonds, was the high spot of the three day session. Capt. Edmonds had as his immediate aides Commander Laurent Dickson of Bay St. Louis and Commander Bill Colmer.

Governor Conner, speaking at the opening session, declared that "In America there is now a crying need for every organization such as the legion, and never was there a greater field for usefulness by activity for the government than now nor when more patriotism was required."

Reports submitted recommended that state laws an exemptions for disabled men be amended so they may operate a small business without excessive privilege license; and that a war memorial bridge be erected. In an address Dan Sours of New York, national legion committee-man, declared that "crime, fostered by prohibition rides supreme in this country."

"Another problem facing us is the breaking down of class consciousness," he said. "We must get the banker to quit thinking in terms of what's beneficial to the banker, and likewise the farmer to quit thinking in terms of what's beneficial to the farmer, alone, but rather in terms of what's beneficial to the entire nation."

"We able bodied men of the legion have no demands to make upon our government at this time," he said referring to the bonus and continued, "It makes my head hang in shame to see those misguided buddies of mine parade the streets of Washington for charity because they could get employment."

Luther Maples of Gulfport state commander, presided at the session.

Hancock's Ladies' Auxiliary The local Auxiliary was represented at the convention as well as the local Post. Mrs. Laurent Dickson and Miss Azalie Favre were the official delegates, and were accompanied to the convention by Mrs. Orice M. Pollard, Mrs. Jas. G. Jones, Mrs. Douglas Bourgeois, Mrs. C. M. Burgdahl, Mrs. Martin Blanchard, Mrs. Victor Colson.

The ladies wore uniforms, consisting of red and blue cape and caps to match and attracted favorable comment all along the line of parade Monday afternoon.

The Auxiliary received a silver loving cup for highest per cent membership and citation for membership standing.

Another honor Bay St. Louis and Hancock county scored was that Mrs. Laurent Dickson was elected district vice president, an honor and recognition worthily bestowed.

John J. McDonald, local pleasure boat owner, participated in both the recent Biloxi and Pass Christian regatta last Saturday and in each instance carried off honors, winning first place with the Princess at Pass Christian regatta and last week second place with his new boat, "Cinderella."

The "Cinderella," cabin catboat Marconi rigged, brand new and recently built for Mr. McDonald, is a trim vessel of twenty-five feet and won the admiration of the spectators for its fine performance and coming in a close second.

"The Princess," also owned by Mr. McDonald, 14-foot cat, came in first in the race for her class and was awarded a silver trophy.

"Tom Cat" Wins The "Tom Cat" well-known cat boat owned by Manney Spurl, of Bay St. Louis and New Orleans, won first in the Pass Regatta in the race of its particular class.

The Del B., Newly-Built Boat Wins Silver Trophy Last Saturday.

Designed and built especially for Miss L. C. Del Bondio, the motor boat, Del B., of Pass Christian, won first place in its race at the regatta last Saturday and the trophy was well worthy. A silver fruit holder, resting on a pedestal designed in silver relief and outline of figures representing three Russian hounds was the prize.

The boat was built by Frank P. Witmann. It is twenty feet long and six-foot beam, equipped with fast motor and outled all competitors in the race Saturday, covering two miles in 30 minutes.

In the boat at the time of the race were Mr. Frank Wittman, pilot, Jean Roberts, engineer and Miss Del Bondio.

Celebrating the success of the cleverly-constructed and successful running boat, Miss Del Bondio Tuesday evening at her home, "Blue Heaven," on Pass Christian beach, entertained a few friends informally, including Captain Parker of the famous power-schooner "Lillian Parker" Mr. Wittman and others.
